School Gardens

Some schools have gardens where students grow vegetables. Students water the plants and pull weeds every day, and by doing so, they learn how food is grown. When the vegetables are ready, students often cook them together. Many students say that vegetables from their garden taste better.

A

B

